

READY REF® Wireless Field Clock System

On-Field Official's Guide

Introduction

The Ready Ref Wireless Field Clock System provides an on-the-field football official direct control of the 25-second clocks and gives him a discrete vibration signal so the attention is on the players at the snap, not on the clock. This dual timer also times the 60-second time out and gives the official a vibration signal for the 45-second coaches warning.

Transmitter Operation

Press Rocker Switch to "H" - Sends a one second coded signal to start the 25-second count on the two end-zone clocks. When the count reaches zero the transmitter will vibrate for five seconds.

Press Rocker Switch to "T" - Sends a one second coded signal to start the 60-second count on the two end-zone clocks. The transmitter will vibrate for two seconds when the count reaches 45 seconds, then five seconds when the count reaches 60 seconds.

Press "Reset" Button – Sends a one-second coded signal to the two end zone clocks and resets the entire system to zero.

Important Note: After pressing "Reset" the one-second-transmission signal must be completed before the transmitter will accept an "H" or "T" command.

Ready-for-Play Mechanic

1. Back judge typically wears the transmitter on the belt at his side.
2. On the referee's ready-for-play whistle press rocker to "H".
3. At the snap press the "Reset" button.

Time-out Mechanic

1. At the referee's time-out or try signal press the rocker to "T".
2. When the transmitter vibrates at 45 seconds notify the wings.
3. When the transmitter vibrates at 60 seconds notify the referee.

Helpful Hints

- Even if one of the end zone clock signals is disrupted, the transmitter timer gives its vibration at the correct time.
- An intermittent transmitter vibration is the first indication of a weak battery. A new battery should last four games.
- If rain threatens protect the transmitter with its rain case.
